

Versatile event venue in the heart of London

Bargehouse is an exciting atmospheric space in London's fast moving South Bank and Bankside areas. A vast, untouched four-storey building, in its raw state Bargehouse is a blank canvas with tremendous scope for exhibitions and events. Over four floors there is approximately 15,000 ft² of event space, although areas of the building can be closed down to produce smaller venues.

Location

Bargehouse is situated at the heart of one of the richest cultural areas of London, in Oxo Tower Wharf – a landmark development on London's South Bank that is home to a destination restaurant owned by Harvey Nichols, cafes, bars and thirty design shops occupied by innovative contemporary designers.

Product launches

Sainsburys (Jul 04)

Using the variety of rooms to launch their new Autumn/Christmas home and food collection to the press, Sainsburys transformed Bargehouse into a labyrinth of desirable home-living experiences.

Diesel (Aug 03)

When wanting to recreate the industrial backdrop of the Diesel 2003 Italian shows for staff and wholesalers in London, Bargehouse offered the perfect location with its exposed brickwork and interesting textures.

Staff motivation

Unilever (Jun 03)

Textile artist Helen Storey created interactive art in every room of the four storey building, creating an innovative and exciting space for marketing and art directors from Unilever to engage with art in its purist form. The session included a private lunch in the second floor restaurant at Oxo Tower Wharf, located opposite Bargehouse.

Fashion shows

With its raw industrial feel, Bargehouse provided a startling contrast for Isham to present his elegant Autumn/Winter collection to press and fashion buyers during London Fashion Week.
